THE COMING OF THE SHRINE.

THE visit of the gentlemen with fez and scimitars from the banks of the Truckee carries a grand object lesson that should not be lost on the people of the State. The visitors come here in the right spirit and what President Wilson calls a psychological frame of mind with the intention of conducting ceremonies that will bind the people of the south and the residents of the north in a closer union. There was a time when Reno was envious of the successes and adulation showered on the new mining camps of the desert, but that time has gone glimmering into history never more to return. The metropolis of the state found that every dollar extracted from the mines of Tonopah and Goldfield contributed in some measure to the prosperity of the prettiest little city in the United States. Then the business men of that burg began cultivating the miners and merchants from the south with the result that they have come to a better understanding of the merits of each other.

The system of interchanging hospitalities is great medicine. It is an aid to friendship and an abettor of business relations which all should appreciate. There should be more of this sort of meeting that the handful of men and women who make for the welfare of this great state should put their shoulders to the wheel and work for a common cause and the advancement of interests of both a business and social character. Nevada has the best class of constructive talent and all the citizens need is to get started in the right direction. The state is too small comparatively to tolerate spleen and petty jealousies. To indulge in animosities is to divert attention from the material welfare of the state and keep men from devoting their energies to the work of upbuilding that marks the progress of every enterprising state in the Union. If the citizens of Nevada help themselves they will find that Providence will not overlook them in the distribution of treasures.

NOT SO BAD AS EXPECTED.

BEFORE the war dire predictions were made in London and Berlin as to the financial consequences of the war. The Germans had a theory that England would be ruined and the English had a theory that Germany would be ruined. Up to date none of the theories seems to have been justified. But as the war has not brought disaster as yet to any nation except Belgium, and in that country the people are starving, while business is wrecked. In a few months reverses will begin to tell upon either Germany or the allies, and when the financial and business crisis becomes acute the nations where it is felt will have started down hill to disaster. When that time comes, the available capital in such a country, or countries, will seek investment elsewhere, and naturally the money will go to the country where investments are stable, secure and profitable. Naturally the United States should expect to receive the bulk of this wealth, for it is the only nation that can offer absolute security and sure profit. It will not do, therefore, to talk about hard times in this country. If we are pessimistic and lament about hard times and poor business the money will go elsewhere.

It was stated a few weeks ago that Emperor Wilhelm already had invested in New York property. Later this was denied by prominent German financiers in New York, and no doubt the denial was justified, but the mere fact that such a story was circulated shows that this country expects to receive investments from abroad whenever wealth is driven from foreign shores. The losing countries will not remain at home and endure the gigantic taxes necessitated by the war, but money is seldom patriotic, and the chances are that the possessors of wealth in the countries which meet with disaster will seek to invest their wealth in the United States. As a matter of fact, the wealthy men of England long ago took precautions against war by placing their investments in the United States and in South America, as well as in Canada and in other English colonies. It was revealed only a few days ago that the kaiser was a heavy investor in Canadian property, showing that he still will have a nest egg, even should his estate in Germany vanish as the result of defeat in war. It was proposed in England that the kaiser's Canadian estate be confiscated, and steps were taken in that direction, but the English court decided that the kaiser could not be deprived of his property.

These are some of the indications that money for investment will flow from Europe into this country after the war, and we should make the best preparations to welcome it.

Workers out of employment should be warned not to come to Tonopah, which suffers from a congestion of labor owing to conditions that cannot be ignored. The mining industry has been temporarily crippled by the dislocation of trade caused by European hostilities and until some system of exchange be restored commensurate with business requirements the products of the mines will be at a discount. Tonopah has been one of the last places on the continent to feel the blighting effects of war and residents of this

SUPPORT THE HOME PAPER ENJOINED BY FORMER GOVERNOR OF MISSOURI

Ex-Governor David R. Francis, of Missouri, once said the following of newspapers: "Each year the local paper gives from $500 to $1,000 in free lines to the community in which it is located. No other agency can or will do this. The editor, in proportion to his means, does more for his town than any other ten men, and in all fairness he ought to be supported—not because you like him or admire his writings, but because the local paper is the best investment a community can make. It may not be brilliantly edited or crowded with thought, but financially it is of more benefit to the community than the preacher or teacher. Understand me, I do not mean mentally, and yet on moral questions you will find most of the papers on the right side. Today the editors of the local papers do the most for the least money of any people on earth."

camp should feel thankful that they have enjoyed a greater degree of prosperity than vouchsafed others. However, it is due to the hundreds of idle miners facing this direction to warn them there is no opening for workers in this camp. The cost of living is high and the man or woman with scant savings will soon find them dissipated while searching for work in a limited field.

"It's a Long Way to Tipperary," chorused the Shriners as they marched up town this morning, indicating the presence of the militant spirit that is making Nevada a better and more prosperous state.

Even the suffragettes are learning something since they have decided the black list is not the best kind of medicine for a political campaign.

If we could only quarantine the human beings who get the mouth disease the world would be a pleasanter place to live in.

This year's corn crop is the most valuable ever produced in the country, it being placed at near two billion dollars. Ear! Ear!

A lady writer claims crime is rare among actors, but perhaps she has never seen some of them act.—Washington Post.

At all events the soldiers who die on the field of battle escape the high cost of living.

The mining industry seems to get greater results in Europe than in America.

The shoe dealer knows where the shoe pinches, but he never tells the buyer.

TONOPAH'S PROBLEM AS IT LOOKS NOW

Tonopah seems to be looking squarely in the face the problem of perpetuating local self-government. The story printed in the Gazette today from that great mining camp is one that should command the attention and serious study of every law-abiding citizen of Nevada.

The Gazette has printed from time to time evidences of the activity of a revolutionary organization with headquarters in an adjoining state whose operations were clearly directed against the forces of law and order at Tonopah. The evidence heretofore published by the Gazette showed clearly that similar operations in the hop fields of California were inspired for the same source as the operations in Tonopah.

The burning of the Nevada theater, with more than half a score of homes, following as it did the dynamite attack on a newspaper, and the shooting that preceded these acts, should force upon the people of the state, as well as upon the residents of Tonopah, the importance of restoring a reign of law.

We cannot view complacently the circumstances of this revolutionary agitation in Tonopah—we cannot call it by any other name—while men are permitted to harangue crowds in the public streets, advising defiance of the law, destruction of property and life if necessary, in furtherance of a propaganda that holds all law in contempt.

The people of that community face a problem that requires something more than moral suasion. When people elect to office men who will encourage such proceedings, daily with them, lend their moral support and the prestige and protection of official authority, then local self-government is under a test it cannot long endure. Defiance of law begets further defiance and when the men who are sworn to uphold government lend themselves to its overthrow we have chaos, and order can be restored only by force. If this force may be the force provided by law, all the better, but when the law and its agents are insufficient, force without law is the common resort.

Order will be restored and perpetuated in Tonopah or the camp and its homes and its mines will be abandoned, and this latter is not going to happen.—Reno Gazette.

CALIFORNIA-HAWAIIAN REFINERY CLOSES DOWN

The plant of the California-Hawaiian Sugar Refining company, one of the largest cane sugar refineries in the west, was closed down Wednesday. Notices were posted in all the buildings of the company, which is the largest institution in Crockett, and which employs about 800 men.
